Usual Cast of Characters

Saturday, Sept 25 – Day Two

7:30-8:30 AM – Registration and Book Table

8:30-9:20 AM – Session 1: The Sufficiency of Scripture: What it does and doesn't mean –

Sola scriptura (by Scripture alone) isn't solo scriptura (scripture alone). In other words, the sufficiency of Scripture doesn't exclude the teachings of the church (such as the creeds). Nor does it mean that Scripture is sufficient for everything in life regardless of whether it actually addresses everything or not. What it does mean is that only in Scripture do we find the authoritative teaching of God's law and gospel.

Rev. Dr. Rod Rosenblatt

9:30-10:20 AM – Session 2: Sufficient for Doctrine and Life –

Churches of the Reformation teach the value of creeds and confessions not because they're on a par with Scripture, but because they summarize Scripture. They stand under God's Word. While other people and institutions communicate truth and oblige us to obey their commands, the church cannot go beyond Scripture in its doctrinal and moral teachings and the believer must refuse all authorities that add to or take away from God's Word.

Rev. Ken Jones

10:20-11:00 AM – Beverage & Light Snacks – Book Table, Book Signing & Meet and Greet the Hosts

11:00-11:50 AM – Session 3: Sufficient for Worship –

Many churches still use God's Word in worship, but do we believe that God's Word is sufficient for defining the public services? Or do we think that we can worship God however we like as long as we're sincere?

Dr. Kim Riddlebarger

12:00 PM-12:50 PM – Session 4: Sufficient for Outreach -

Methods for evangelism and outreach are always changing, we're told, to make the gospel more relevant to particular times and places. Of course, there is appropriate sensitivity to our context, but is Scripture sufficient for determining not only what we say to the world but how we say it?

Rev. Dr. Michael Horton
